(b)(3) CIAAct

Subject: Hello [redacted]

(b)(6)

My server will not allow a file this large to go through it, so I am submitting the photos via fax for your review. Most of them were captured directly from the CIA website. The others are Internet downloads or scanned images from purchased copies. If you need electronic copies of these images I am happy to drop them into the mail in whatever format you identify.

- 5 Slides with captions and notes

I look forward to talking with you,

Thomas Waters Jr.

The CIA logo was copied directly from the CIA web page.

The 911 photo was published around the world in the days after the attack and has become one of the most recognized images from that day. This picture was captured from the Internet. If used for publication we will secure proper permission to use the image.

The CIA's 35 year old Insectoceptor. These were cleared through PRB and provided by CIA Museum Curator Toni Hiley for use in Class 11.

NOTES:

Images of fallen CIA employees Mike Spann and Helge Boes were copied from major news reports of their deaths. The publishers and I will be responsible for securing copyright permissions for both pictures.

The movie jacket covers were taken from Amazon.com. The publishers and I will be responsible for securing any copyright permissions for both covers.

The television images were copied from the internet. The publishers and I will be responsible for securing copyright permissions for both images.

Parade Magazine's cover story
on Miles and Shannon Spurz came out immediately after we began training, causing great concern among family members.

Interest in the CIA is at an all time high, as these major magazine covers indicate.

NOTES:

The Parade Magazine cover article was published in 2002. This image was digitally scanned. The publishers and I will be responsible for securing copyright permissions for using the cover.

The two magazine covers were digitally scanned from original (purchased) copies. The publishers and I will be responsible for securing copyright permissions for both covers.
